(b) FINRA charges brokerage firms a fee on sell orders, which is passed through to the SEC to support the costs of regulation and supervision. Costs and Charges Illustration for US listed stocks

This document aims to provide you with certain scenarios in order to illustrate how the costs and associated charges will impact your investment returns. Although these examples are based on actual incurred costs (or reasonable estimations of such costs) as a proxy for expected costs and charges, actual costs and charges incurred in respect of any future transaction may be different.

For simplification and ease of understanding, the calculations are based on the following assumptions:

- The client is able to add the following parameters based on which personalized scenarios are presented: subscription plan, initial investment amount, holding period, recurring investment, number of buy transactions per month, expected annual return.
- Three scenarios based on expected annual return are presented:
 - First, where annual expected return is the one added by the client;
 - Second, where annual expected return (%) is 0%;
 - Third, where the annual expected return is the one added by the client, just negative.
- All amounts, including subscription plans are in EUR.
- The assumption is made that the client invests one lump-sum amount in the beginning and makes recurring payments on a specified amount in euro at the beginning of every month starting from the second month. Client is able to specify the number of recurring payments to be made during the month to understand the impact of commissions.
- The assumption is made that the client executes 1 sell transaction (in addition to the recurring transaction made that month) at the end of the holding period to show the impact on costs of closing the position.
- For FX transactions above the FX limits, a fee of 0.6% on the exchanged amount is charged for Basic, Grow and Scale plans. The 0.6% fee has also been assumed for Enterprise, where rates may vary. The assumption is also made that all FX transactions are issued within market hours, where the 1% fee for exchanges outside market hours is not applicable.

Each client has to choose a subscription plan - Revolut Business cannot be used without having a plan. Revolut Business is available on 4 subscription plans (Basic, Grow, Scale and Enterprise), where each has different subscription fees and FX limits.
