Given that you have applied for consumer credit, we have provided you with the standard information on consumer credit, based on Article 5 of the Law on Consumer Credit of the Republic of Lithuania.

We undertake to conclude a consumer credit agreement with you in accordance with the terms specified in the standard information for the period indicated in the standard information, except when it turns out that any information provided by you which is necessary for us to make a decision of granting a consumer credit under the conditions specified in this standard information:

1. is incomplete, false and/or misleading;
2. has changed in the way that we would not have made a decision of granting a consumer credit in accordance with the terms specified in this standard information, if we had known about the changed circumstances before the appointment of such decision, for example, a decrease in your income, which serves as a basis of your ability to fulfill obligations under the consumer credit agreement, or occurrence of other circumstances which give reasonable doubt of the possibility to fulfill obligations under the anticipated agreement.

The total price of the consumer credit and its annual interest rate provided in the standard information is calculated assuming that the full amount of the credit will be disbursed on the same day. The total price of consumer credit and its annual interest rate may slightly differ from the total price of the consumer credit and its annual interest rate specified in the standard information due to the calendar month in which the consumer credit agreement will be concluded.

If you have any questions related to the standard information, please contact us via Revolut App and (or) via Bank's email indicated in the Revolut App.
